Dear «Ref_Person_FirstName»,

Welcome to the Living in Australia (HILDA) study for Wave 23

Cost of living pressures, extreme weather events and political developments internationally are all having an impact on daily life for many Australians. For some, the extraordinary circumstances of the past few years have prompted a great deal of change and upheaval while others have felt little difference. The Living in Australia (HILDA) study tracks changes in the lives of individuals and their households over time and is an important tool to understand how Australians are now living.

This year our focus is on family, relationships and retirement. As we move through different life stages, the quality of our family relationships can have a major impact on our wellbeing. Whether you're just starting out in life or heading towards retirement, your involvement in the Living in Australia study continues to provide valuable insight into planning for Australia's future. It is important that researchers and policy makers understand how economic and social changes impact us as individuals, and society as a whole.

Enclosed in this parcel you will find:

- The latest Newsletter, with a letter from The Hon Amanda Rishworth MP, Minister for Social Services, Member for Kingston
- Information on your gift of up to $70 following your participation, and prize draws
