Who is carrying out this study?

The Melbourne Institute of Applied Economic and Social Research at the University of Melbourne leads a research group that designs and manages the study. The other partners in the group are the Australian Council for Educational Research and the Australian Institute of Family Studies. The study is funded by and conducted on behalf of the Australian Government.

The Nielsen Company, a private social research organisation, has been contracted to carry out the interviews. Nielsen is highly regarded for its integrity and independence. It has been conducting the interviews since the study commenced in 2001.

What about privacy?

Your information is protected.

The people involved in the study are committed to ethical research and legally bound to ensure your information is secure. All people involved in the project must comply with the Privacy Act 1998. Your identifying information is collected for the purpose of the Living in Australian study. Access to your identifying information will be restricted to those who require it for the purpose of administering or conducting the study.

More information

If you want any more information on the study, or would like to know more about how your privacy is protected please telephone free of charge 1800 656 670 or visit us online at www.livinginaustralia.org. If you have any special needs, need help speaking English, or you don’t want to participate, please call the number above or tell your Nielsen interviewer.

If you should have any concerns about the conduct of this study, you are welcome to contact the Executive Officer, Human Research Ethics, The University of Melbourne, by calling 03 8344 2073 or by sending a fax to 03 9347 6739. We hope you will enjoy the study and support us in improving life in Australia!
Why is the study important?
The USA, Germany, Canada, Britain, Israel, Sweden, Korea, Japan, Indonesia and Belgium all have similar long term studies. The value this has brought to these countries is considerable. Your participation will ensure Australia can also benefit.
The information you provide is having a long term impact on Australia’s direction. Every year that you and other households respond, the study increases in value and in its power to influence decision making. Thanks to your input we now have information on topics such as:

• Planning for our aging population
• How smoking bans have affected the health and smoking behaviour of Australians
• Explaining unemployment in Australia
• The impact of long working hours
• The reasons for Australia’s declining birth rate
• The personal and national costs of mental illness
• The division of household chores between men and women
• The effect of part-time work on families and women’s careers
• Childcare: accessibility and who uses it
• The effect of household debt on Australians
• Maternity leave arrangements available to Australian women
• The impact of separation and divorce on income
• Job satisfaction of Australians
• How health influences the ability to work

Why have I been asked to take part?
We are interested in Australian households. To understand the ways in which they work, we need to talk to everyone in participating households. You have been invited to take part in the Living in Australia study because you are living in the household of someone who is participating. The study began in 2001, and the people who took part in the first year were chosen at random. Everyone living in these households is invited to take part.
Participation is by invitation only. You are one of the lucky people who have been chosen to share your unique experience of living in Australia. This provides you with the opportunity to influence Government and social decisions with hard facts about your life and your household situation.

Is this study voluntary?
Yes, this study is voluntary. However, because only certain people are chosen to become part of the study, the participation of everyone who is contacted is very important. Your views and experience in Australia are unlike that of anybody else, and your participation is vital to us.

Our thanks to you
A gift of $25 is our thanks to you for helping us with this study. Each person who participates will receive $25. Once everyone in your household has taken part, your household will receive an extra $25.